

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor apparatus includes a substrate; m electrically conductive layers formed on the substrate, m being an integer of 2 or more, potentials of the m electrically conductive layers being capable of being independently controlled; and semiconductor thin films having at least one semiconductor device respectively. The semiconductor thin films are bonded on surfaces of the m electrically conductive layers respectively.